Admission, Recruitment and Widening Access

Introduction

The School considers the efficient running of a student admissions process to be critical to its success.

Terminology

'Admissions' is defined as any procedures through which students are told about the School, apply for its programmes, are selected for enrolment, and are informed of the requirements of their chosen programmes in the framework of this policy.

Scope

This policy includes the procedures for informing students about the School and enabling them to choose appropriate programmes, as well as enrolment applications, diagnostic testing, selection, enrolling, and the planned induction of new students.

Aims

The policy's main aim is to guarantee that the School follows a clear, fair, and consistent set of procedures for selecting and admitting students, as well as for introducing them to their programmes of study. The School operates its admissions policy and procedures in line with its widening participation and social including agenda and its Access and Participation Statement. The School will not knowingly place barriers in the way of any student's application in accordance with the conditions of the Equality Act 2010. Further, the School will seek ways of attracting and engaging with applicants from underrepresented groups to facilitate their access to courses.

Objectives

The Admissions Policy and its procedures have the following goals:

- to guarantee that any promotional materials used to tell potential students about the School are accurate, thorough, and suitable for their intended use
- to guarantee that any commissioned or directly organized face-to-face student recruiting efforts are managed effectively and professionally, and that prospective student inquiries are handled in a polite and helpful way

- ensuring that all selection criteria are fair, reasonable, and clearly stated, and that all staff involved in student selection interact with prospective students in a helpful and polite way.
 - to develop plans for the efficient and confidential documentation of all selection choices, as well as to ensure that all interactions with prospective students are helpful and non-bureaucratic.
 - to ensure that successful candidates are fully aware of the School's admissions standards
 - to ensure applicants fully understand the entry criteria for their chosen course and to explain, as needed, how they can demonstrate that they meet the entry requirements
 - to make clear any English language proficiency requirements and evidence of proficiency, and to make available internal English language proficiency tests as appropriate
 - to ensure applicants understand the time and commitment they will have to make to their studies
- € candidates who have not been given a place are notified in a polite and sympathetic way
- to make sure that all student admissions complaints and appeals are handled in a timely, fair, and reasonable way
